

Europe Solidaire Sans Frontières > English > Europe, Great Britain > European Union > Environment (EU) > Climate (EU) > Sustainable finance? A critical look at new EU legislation on climate investment

Sustainable finance? A critical look at new EU legislation on climate investment

Sunday 1 July 2018, by STICHELE Myriam Vander (Date first published: 15 June 2018).

To encourage the financing of activities that mitigate climate change, the EU has launched a policy to involve the private financial sector. The EU wants private capital to contribute to the commitments made at the Paris Climate Summit and to a certain extent, the UN Sustainability Goals. SOMO researcher Myriam Vander Stichele has written a paper which explores recent EU-legislation that should support this policy.

On the 24th of May 2018, the European Commission has proposed a package of three laws that should encourage the financing of activities that tackle climate change, and to a lesser degree the financing of activities that should boost a sustainable economy. It stipulates measures to avoid greenwashing, i.e. abusive claims to be 'green' investments, and to integrate environmental, social and governance (ESG) risks in investment decisions. While this is a first step towards sustainable finance, these measures will not compel a massive shift in financial flows, nor comprehensively integrate sustainability in the financial sector.

Read the full report: "Sustainable finance in new EU legislation: focus on climate investment".
<https://www.somo.nl/wp-content/uploads/2018/06/Sustainable-finance-in-new-EU-legislation.pdf>

Myriam Vander Stichele

Click here to subscribe to our weekly newsletters in English and or French. You will receive one email every Monday containing links to all articles published in the last 7 days.

P.S.

SOMO

<https://www.somo.nl/sustainable-finance-new-eu-legislation-focus-climate-investment/>