

The Crisis is Permanent - MENA After the Arab Spring with Gilbert Achcar

Friday 8 March 2024, by ACHCAR Gilbert, DOHERTY Alex (Date first published: 7 March 2024).

Alex Doherty interviews Gilbert Achcar for the Politics Theory Other podcast.

Thirteen years have passed since the Arab Spring and the great hopes aroused in 2011 have been overwhelmed by counter-revolution and civil war. And yet, the region is anything but restabilised: Instead of the events of 2011 heralding a brief period of democratic transition akin to earlier developments in East Asia and Eastern Europe they instead, Gilbert Achcar argues, inaugurated a long-term revolutionary process, based in a deep-rooted socioeconomic crisis that is far from played out. In this talk Gilbert assesses the dynamics of MENA region, the factors hindering regional change, and he cautions against overly optimistic readings, while nonetheless arguing that there remain reasons for hope.

Alex Doherty
Gilbert Achcar

Click here to subscribe to ESSF newsletters in English and/or French.

P.S.

Anti-Capitalist Resistance

<https://anticapitalistresistance.org/the-crisis-is-permanent-mena-after-the-arab-spring-w-gilbert-achcar/>